Boo in the Bottoms Brings the Spirit of Halloween Streetside

First Friday Weekend in Kansas City's West Bottoms October 2-4

KANSAS CITY, MISSOURI — As Halloween traditions may evolve in 2020, organizers for the West Bottoms First Friday Weekend, October 2-4, use their vast outdoor spaces between stores to create a spirited Boo in the Bottoms Halloween event.

Fun screams and laughter are in store for young and old. Organizers welcome costumes. Streetside, they'll have photo opportunities with haunt characters, trick-or-treating, and crafts, including one that colorizes masks hosted by Amy Desitter Painting and Drawing. Area stores will showcase their Fall finds of vintage, antiques, fashion, furniture, and spooky decor.

"While 2020 has cast a shadow on lots of fun things, the West Bottoms has outdoor spaces between buildings to host family activities," said Amber Arnett-Bequeaith, the district spokesperson, aka Queen of Haunts.

Visitors can enter the "Boo in Bottoms Giveaway" for a chance to win four VIP combo tickets to world-famous Beast and Edge of Hell, Full Moon Escape Games, and the first 500 will receive a free trick-or-treat bag. Winners will be randomly drawn, one per day.

"Boo in the Bottoms gets some of our haunted house characters out by day for fun photos. Both the Beast and Edge of Hell are open for a super short season, so we're going the extra mile to make it special." Arnett-Bequeaith added.

Festival of the Full Moon street events happen every First Friday weekend of the month and recognizes the month's moon. October marks the Hunters Moon, undoubtedly appropriate with all the hunts for something spectacular in the West Bottoms.
